Kiran Katira is an East-African Indian woman, born in Kenya and raised in England. She received her Ph.D. in Educational Thought and Socio-Cultural Studies from the University of New Mexico. For the past 18 years she has worked with New Mexico communities through the University of New Mexico's Community Engagement Center, where she facilitates the leadership development of local university students serving in thirty community-based projects. She is also a trainer-in-training with the People's Institute for Survival and Beyond and an active member of Families United for Education. Kiran also teaches university courses, which focus on antiracist-education, community-based research, and economic justice.

Panelists:
- Sylvia Crago, MD, Pediatrician, Presbyterian Medical Group
- Eliza Peralta, RN, New Mexico VA Telemetry Unit
- Diana Sanchez-Gallegos, PNP, FNP, Presbyterian Family Medicine
- Beth Tarrant, CNM, UNMH Women’s Faculty and Midwife Clinic

©2019 Rollins College. All rights reserved. Designed by Design Associates International.